MONUMENT MARKING BRADDOCK'S START IS UNVEILED TODAY

Virginia Colonial Dames
Alexandria.

HISTORIC MARCH BEGAN THERE

British General Led His Troops to Fort Duquesne, Which Expedition
Cost Him His Life and His Body
Now Lies Along the National Pike.

By Associated Press.
ALEXANDRIA, Va., May 26.—Marking the spot from which Major General Braddock and his force of British regulars and Virginia troops, with Colonel George Washington as aide-de-camp, departed from here in April, 1755, on the disastrous expedition to take Fort Duquesne, the present site of Pittsburgh, Pa., in the war against the French and Indians, an interesting incident was unveiled here today by the Society of the Colonial Dames of Virginia. Many members of the Society of Colonial Dames, the daughters of the American Revolution and other patriotic societies from various parts of Virginia, District of Columbia, Maryland and Pennsylvania witnessed the presentation of the monument to officials of the city of Alexandria. Many of those present will take part tomorrow in the unveiling of a similar monument at Winchester, Va. One of the old British cannon abandoned here by General Braddock surrounds the monument. For many years the cannon had stood upright in the earth at one of the city's street corners as a marker and was an object of interest to sightseers. By an act of the city council several years ago the ancient piece of ordnance, brought from England by General Braddock when he came out to Virginia as generalissimo of all the British forces in the American colonies in the war against the French, was turned over to the Mount Vernon Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. That organization today formally presented it to the Virginia Colonial Dames under whose auspices the monument was erected.

Forming the base of the monument and mounting the old cannon are other relics of bygone days in the shape of cobblestones which for more than a century had served the city of Alexandria as paving in some of its principal streets and which show the road worn by the artillery and transport of the northern armies during the Civil War. The stones are said by tradition to have been laid on Alexandria's streets by Hessian soldiers captured in the War of the Revolution by the Continental troops. A bronze tablet on one side of the base of the monument bears this inscription:

"This monument marks the trail taken by the army of General Braddock which left in April, 1755, to defeat the western frontier against the French and Indians. Erected by the Society of the Colonial Dames of Virginia, May 26, 1915."

On the opposite side of the boulder, embedded here, the inscription appears on another tablet of bronze: "The cannon used here was abandoned by General Braddock at old Alexandria, April, 1755. The cobblestones composing the mound were taken from the streets of Alexandria where they were placed in 1785 by act of the Virginia House of Burgesses."

General Braddock's expedition, plans of which he laid out to Benjamin Franklin at a conference at Philadelphia, was to march to Fort Duquesne. "After taking Fort Duquesne," the general is quoted as saying, "I am to proceed to Niagara, and after that, to take the western frontier against the French and Indians. I will, I suppose, be here in three or four days; and then I can see nothing to obstruct my march to Niagara."

In the battle at Fort Duquesne, July 9, 1755, General Braddock was mortally wounded. Colonel George Washington was only one member of his staff to escape unhurt. The British and Colonial soldiers of 277 officers and men killed or wounded out of 1,559 engaged, while the French loss was trifling and only the corpse of a single Indian saved the survivors from massacre. General Braddock died July 12, 1755, at Great Meadows, about 60 miles from Fort Duquesne, to which place the remains of his army retreated. He was buried at a point now seven miles east of Uniontown, Pennsylvania.

PERRYOPOLIS.

PERRYOPOLIS, May 26.—The commencement exercises of the class of 1915 were held last evening in the high school auditorium. The hall, which was tastefully trimmed in the class colors, white and gold, was well filled with interested listeners. The class, six in number, three girls and three boys, marched in and took their places to the strains of music by the Olympic orchestra of Pittsburgh. Accompanying the class were Dr. J. H. Martin, secretary of the board of directors, Rev. C. G. Huffer, Rev. J. A. Youngkin, Prof. F. W. Wright of Uniontown, and Principal H. V. Snyder. Each member of the class performed well their part on the program. Dr. Martin in a neat little speech, presented the diploma. Dr. Wright addressed the class, and also made a stirring appeal to the citizens and patrons to give the school their most loyal support. The invocation was asked by Rev. Huffer and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Youngkin.

Mrs. John Little of Uniontown, in the guest of relatives in town. Howard Leighty of Vanderhill, is visiting friends in town.

Memorial Day services will be held on Monday. In the morning at 10 o'clock Rev. C. G. Huffer will make the address in the Methodist Episcopal Church and at 2 P. M. the services will be resumed at Mount Washington cemetery.

THE PARTISAN BALLOT FOR CONNELLSVILLE

Now that the Legislature has adjourned and all the possible amendments have been made to the third class city law, Conneltsville has time to take stock of her situation and consider the manner of men to be chosen for the administration of her affairs for another period of four years from January 1, 1916, and the manner of their choosing. It is a long term for City Commissioners and it is needless to say that care should be exercised in their selection. The primaries are not until September. There are three months in which to grow a crop of candidates. That should be plenty of time.

While the third class city law says that municipal officers shall be elected on a non-partisan ballot, and several judges throughout the state have upheld the validity of this portion of the law, it has been declared unconstitutional by Judge Van Swearingen, and in the absence of any decision by the higher courts the decision of the Fayette county court will govern the coming Conneltsville election. Just as it governed the election of 1913.

The decision of Judge Van Swearingen, moreover, is sound common sense, and The Courier believes it is good law. The court decided that the non-partisan ballot feature of the law was unconstitutional, because it conflicted not only with Article III, Section 7, which says, "The General Assembly shall not pass any general or special law for the opening or conducting of elections," but also with Article VIII, Section 7, which says, "All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens, or for the registration of voters, shall be uniform throughout the state."

Without arguing the question as to whether the non-partisan ballot for cities and the partisan ballot for boroughs and townships is such a discrimination as is forbidden by Article III, it may be noted that when it was desired fifteen years ago to make registration compulsory in cities and not in towns and townships, it was agreed that an amendment to the Constitution was necessary, and in 1901 the following amendment was adopted to Article VIII, "But laws regulating and requiring the registration of electors may be enacted to apply to cities only, provided that such laws be uniform for cities of the same class."

It was necessary to amend the Constitution to permit the passage of legislation requiring registration in cities and not in towns and townships, the conclusion is inevitable that it is necessary to amend the Constitution to permit non-partisan balloting in the cities and not in the towns and townships. The Constitutional inhibition of election laws not "uniform throughout the state" is sweeping.

But some county judges have held that the non-partisan ballot law is uniform because it applies uniformly to cities. Nothing could be plainer than the fact that THIS SAME ARGUMENT WOULD HAVE SUFFICED FOR THE PASSAGE OF A UNIFORM REGISTRATION LAW FOR CITIES WITHOUT AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION.

The non-partisan ballot law and the decisions of the courts upholding it are the products of a public sentiment which a few years ago had come to sneer at the Constitution as an antiquated deliverance fitted only for the junk pile. Since that time there has been a revolution of opinion. The object of the Constitution is being better understood. It is realized that this Higher Law was purposely set up TO MAKE CERTAIN LEGISLATIVE LIMITATIONS BEYOND WHICH THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY MIGHT NOT GO. In this connection it will be well to bear in mind that the Constitution was passed by the people and the non-partisan ballot law by the servants of the people, and that THE SERVANT MAY NOT SET ASIDE THE MASTER'S WILL.

Connellsville will elect its city officers this fall on a partisan ballot unless the decision of Judge Van Swearingen is in the meantime reversed by a higher court, and we cannot think this possible because the higher courts still have some respect for the Constitution.

The mine explosion in Cambria county remains to be officially investigated, but it is reported that it happened on a lay-off day when few men were working in the mine and when many of the rules of safety were lax. One of the saddest features of the disaster was the death of a white rescuer.

The prisoners in the Uniontown lockup thought Mine Knob had erupted when the natural gas exploded in the basement. They are accustomed to the explosions of Burgess Warman.

This is the day when many aching backs and blistered hands will testify to personal enthusiasm in a good cause.

Politicians can sometimes shift their stench, but the potent editor of The News never touched us.

The Uniontown New Freedom Standard still stands at the walling place, but its tears are of the crocodile variety.

Get your flag for Memorial Day. Show your colors.

The Uniontown New Freedom Standard complains that the record of the Pennsylvania Legislature makes it sick. The uniform wisdom of the Republican state legislation as compared with the uniform folly of the Democratic federal legislation is enough to make any Democratic organ sick.

Both Austria and Italy claim that blood, but he who laughs last laughs best.

Looking Backward

News of the Past Continued from the Files of The Courier.

FRIDAY, MAY 22, 1885.

Engineers for the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youghiogheny railroad districted Conneltsville for the purpose of devising a way of continuing its line from the present terminus in New Haven to Conneltsville. A plan to cross the river over the bridge at Uniontown and thence along the hill into Conneltsville, is considered feasible, but the line has never yet been built.

At a meeting of the Fayette County Sunday School Association in the Presbyterian Church here, the Association made that there are 13,500 school children in the county, yet only 5,000 are enrolled as Sunday school students. Part, but not all of the remaining 7,500 are accounted for as members of the Catholic Sunday schools.

Louella J. West and Miss Belle Armstrong are united in marriage.

Dr. G. W. Newcomer attends the national convention of the Physicians' Medical Association at Indianapolis. The following note is found on the door: "Will be closed for a week in the hope that the Democratic party will in the interim make an improvement in the deplorable condition of the country, an act of promise."

No settlement of the controversy between Burgess Stillwagon and council is yet in sight. The Burgess refused to submit the question of whether or not he shall preside at council meetings to Attorney Hoyte and Swine, and council refuses to meet if Stillwagon is to preside.

Mrs. John McHenry is severely burned when a can of kerosene oil explodes when she used the oil to heat a fire.

FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1895.

Detailed report of the coke trade for the week ending Saturday, May 19, shows a total of 17,831 tons in the region, of which 13,212 are active and 4,619 are idle, with an estimated production of 126,371 tons.

Shipments for the week aggregate 6,873 cars, considered as follows: To Pittsburgh, 2,255 cars; to points west, 3,911 cars; to points east, 1,617 cars. Coke production has again taken a slight upward from 165,000 to 170,000 tons, and prospect for future business is good.

William J. Callahan, foreman for the Danbar Furniture Company, invents a patent safety lamp for miners. Borough Auditors W. H. Solow, John B. Skinner and Harry Dunn submit their report for the year ending March 1, 1895, showing expenditures as follows: General fund, $16,919.21; building fund, $123.87; sewer fund, $1,081.03; street improvement fund, $2,116.32; health fund, $389.76. The borough indebtedness is $53,993.01, with resources of $36,915.52, making the net indebtedness of $16,987.53.

Struck by a Baltimore and Ohio train at Smithton, John Hiltnerman suffers a cerebral skull, which causes an opening two by three inches in his head through which the brain is exposed. Physicians expect that he will recover. In a class of seven, graduated from the high school, Miss Jessie Harris and Milton Goldsmith tie for first place with averages of 93.75. The other graduates are: Ethel Johnson, May E. Traynor, Milton Cable, Minnie Corbin and Charles H. Stouffer.

Nearly a million pike and perch fry are liberated in the Trough river and its tributaries through the influence of John Gay, secretary of the State Fish Commission. They were distributed by Dr. H. L. White, H. E. Snyder, Frank Connelton, C. M. Lyatt, H. B. Spear and H. S. McClune. The fry were all washed away by a flood which followed. Very few pike were ever caught afterwards.

With news that George J. Humbert of Norristown, Pa., contemplated localating a horse (impulse mill at South Conneltsville, visions of a greater Conneltsville appear. The Conneltsville Extension Company, with S. H. DuShane at its head, options 400 acres of and to be used for manufacturing sites and for the rapping out of a new town.

Jacob Widney represents General Worth Eshenbaum at a meeting of the Grand Lodge in Philadelphia. Major Benjamin Richard dies at his home on Pittsburgh and Peach streets.

FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1906.

Detailed report of the coke trade for the week ending Saturday, May 26, shows a total of 22,281 tons in the region, of which 21,272 are active and 2,009 are idle, with an estimated production of 209,921 tons.

Shipments for the week aggregate 14,175 cars, considered as follows: To Pittsburgh, 1,588 cars; to points west, 8,216 cars; to points east, 1,393 cars. The coke trade experiences a slight slump, but shipments continue to be tremendous, holding up well at 14,000 cars.

Judge John Kennedy Ewing, Nestor of the Fayette County bar, is instantly killed when run down by a passenger train at the Fayette street crossing in Uniontown.

The lunch-down log cabin, at Midway street and East alley, known as the Conneltsville Woodstock Tavern, is purchased from the Stillwagon heirs by Attorney Leslie A. Howard, and will be torn down to make way for a modern residence.

The approval by Governor Pennypacker of a $250,000 appropriation bill for state armories, gives rise to hope by Captain John L. Gans and the men of Company D that Conneltsville may get its money for a building.

Patrick Adams of Leetsburg No. 1, a freight conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, disappears from here. A body found in the Trough river is not identified by Adams' relatives.

Mrs. Katherine Thomas, aged 66, dies at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Laura McHenry.

R. C. Smith, former principal of the Vanderburgh schools, is elected principal of the Danbar Township High School at Meyersdale.

William H. Day, familiarly known as "Happy Day," run down and killed by a Somerset & Cambria branch train near Meyersdale.

Holland

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Sitaw."

Holland is a water-tight little country located half way between peace and war on and part way under the North Sea.

It was about 13,000 square miles, but never stays the same size. One day the sea washes away a slice of it and the next day the Hollanders build a new slice and steal it from a neighbor. Almost half of it is below sea level. It is the only submarine country in the world.

Holland is famous for canals, tulips, cheese, gin, art, windmills, diamonds, cutters, hostesses, thrift, history, houses, kabbles and extravagant pants. No country has been written about more extensively and no country is toured more enthusiastically by Americans. It is indeed a pleasant sight to ride through Holland watching the sturdy farmer, clad in 11 pairs of pants, navigating a boat down a four foot canal with a load of hay to trade for rhinoceros receipts. Holland has more windmills than the United States Senate and so many canals that a catfish could vote in every precinct of the country if it had a guide.

Only about 10,000 square miles of Holland are fit to live on, but the population is 6,000,000 people. If the United States was as densely populated as Holland it would have 1,200,000,000 people and some of the railroad would have to put on another passenger train.

A load of hay to trade for rhinoceros receipts.

Holland has the fourth greatest seaport in the world. It owns the mouth of the Rhine, had the greatest flood in history and averages more ducks per square mile than any other country.

Holland has also had more history in the square inch than any other country. It was once the greatest sea power in the world and once Spain very nearly turned it into an old-fashioned Cuba.

But the Hollanders broke in their dikes and the Spaniards went home in boats. The Pilgrim fathers sailed from Holland and the English immigrants navigated up in Friesland so long ago that it doesn't know its mother tongue to today.

The world should be proud of Holland. It has shown what can be done with a little liberty, a large amount of patience and a catfish record.

LOSING HOPE WOMAN VERY ILL

Finally Restored To Health By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bellevue, Ohio.—"I was in a terrible state before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached until I thought it would break, I had pains all over me, nervous feelings and periodic troubles. I was very weak and run down and was losing hope of ever being well and strong. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I improved rapidly and today am a well woman. I cannot tell you how happy I feel and I cannot say too much for your Compound. Would not be without it in the house if it cost three times the amount."—Mrs. CHAS. CHAPMAN, R. F. D. No. 7 Delavue, Ohio.

Woman's Precious Gift.
The one which she should most zealously guard, is her health, but it is the one most often neglected, until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened itself upon her. When so affected such women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be answered, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Improve Your Complexion. Modern, your complexion as well as your temper is rendered miserable by biliousness and constipation. Take Chamberlain's Tablets and you will improve them both. For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

Good blood means good health; good health means strong men and women, full of vigor and ambition, with minds alert and muscles ever willing.

Readford, Pa.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been a family remedy in our family for twenty years. When I feel run down or need a medicine for the appetite I use 'Golden Medical Discovery.' My wife uses it also and we both depend on it and like it so well that we are glad to recommend it to others."

—Mrs. J. S. SEAS, 50 Bank St.

Twenty-four hours after you start to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, poison is matter and blood impurities begin to leave your body through the Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and Skin.

It's a tonic and alternative that brings new activity to the liver, stomach and bowels in a short time, thus causing salivaceous, indigestion, and constipation to disappear. It's a pure glycerine extract of native medicinal roots, made without alcohol.

It enters the tiny blood-vessels of the skin, bringing with it fresh vitalized blood, and adding faith in its wonderful cleansing power has come to thousands, when pimples, boils, carbuncles, rash, eczema, acne and other skin troubles dried up and disappeared.

WM. FARNUM IN "THE NEW GOVERNOR."

The great actor, William Farnum, appears at the Soisson Theatre today in the powerful political drama, "The New Governor." This play was originally "The Nigger," but out of respect for the colored people the title was changed. Marie Walcamp and Wellington Playter are star features in the exciting two reel drama, "The Hand of His Brother," the Animated Weekly has the best number of stirring scenes. The Joker come cartoon, "The Runaway Auto" is a continuous round of laughter. Tomorrow the sixth series of the "2000" pictures, "Houses of Glass," will be the attraction.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards' produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 37 years and colonel's old time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little, round, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—adulterated feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Happy, Thankful People

When disease is removed and health restored in nearly all chronic, nervous and special diseases by the new medical treatment of bacterium, antitoxins, phylaxogens, ulcers and neosilver-san (606 and 914), and in connection with twentieth century office methods of treatment by Mechano-Therapy, Alamo-Radio, Hi-Chem, the new "Non-Shocking" Electrical and other Scientific Druggless systems results are positively obtained in the treatment of the sick that is simply impossible with the use of medicines taken into the stomach or by old electric methods alone. Think the above fact over and if sick or afflicted why depend on any one old set method of treatment, when you can secure what is best for you and better results? We accept for treatment all curable diseases. Consult us (who are regular registered physicians), and see what treatment of treatment you need. We are located permanently, Hours 9 A. M. to 8 P. M. "I fear not, but we will ask at the hospital." And after the exchange of some further explanations we took a hansom back to Charles Cross.

At first the sister refused to allow Muriel to see the patient, but who implored so earnestly that at last she consented, and the distressed girl in the black coat and hat crept on tiptoe to the bedside.

"He was conscious for a quarter of an hour or so," whispered the nurse who sat there. "He asked after some lady named Muriel."

"The girl at my side burst into low sobbing."

"Tell him," she said, "that Muriel is here—that she has seen him, and is waiting for him to recover."

Day succeeded day, and although I was not allowed to visit my friend, I was told that he was very slowly progressing. I filed at the Hotel Cecil, longing daily for news of Elma. Only once did a letter come from her, a brief, well-written note, from which it appeared that she was quite well and happy, although she longed to be able to go out. The princess was very kind indeed to her, and she added, was making secret arrangements for her escape across the Russian frontier into Germany.

I saw Muriel many times, but never once did she refer to Elma, or her sudden departure. Her only thought was of the man she loved.

One afternoon, ten days after the attempt upon Jack, I was allowed to sit by his bedside and question him. "Ah, Gordon, old fellow!" he said faintly. "I've had a most curious day. After I left you I walked quickly on towards the club, when, all of a sudden, two scoundrels sprang out of Suffolk street, and one of them fired a revolver full at me. Then I know no more."

"But who were the men? Did you recognize them?"

"No, not at all. That's the worst of it."

"But Muriel knows who they were!" I said.

"Ah, yes! Bring her here, won't you?" the poor fellow implored. "I'm dying to see her once again."

Then I told him how she had looked upon him while unconscious, and how I had taken the daily bulletin to her. For an hour I talked with him, urging him to get well soon, so that we could unite in probing the mystery, and bringing to justice those responsible for the dastardly act.

"Muriel knows, and if she loves you she will no doubt assist us," I said.

"Oh, she does love me, Gordon, I know that," said the prostrate man, smiling contentedly, and when I left I promised to bring her there on the morrow.

This I did, but having conducted her to the bed at the end of the ward I discreetly withdrew. What she said to him I am not, of course, aware. All I know is that about four days later I turned I found them the happiest pair possible to conceive, and I clearly saw that Jack's trust in her was not ill placed.

But of Elma? No further word had come from her, and I began to grow uneasy. The days went on I wrote twice, but no reply was forthcoming. At last I could bear the suspense no longer, and began to contemplate returning to Russia.

December came, and we still remained on at the hotel. Once Olintho had written me replying his warning, but I did not heed it. I somehow distrusted the fellow.

Jack, now thoroughly recovered, called almost daily at the hotel, and would often bring Muriel to the Cecil to tea or to luncheon. Often I inquired the whereabouts of her father and of Elton Chater, but she declared herself in entire ignorance, and he believed they were abroad.

One afternoon, shortly before Christmas, as we were sitting in the American bar of the hotel, my friend told me that Muriel had invited us to tea at her cousin's that afternoon, and accordingly we went there in company.

As we sat together Muriel, a smart figure in pale blue gown, poured tea for us and chatted more merrily, I thought, than ever before. She seemed quick and nervous and yet full of happiness, as she should indeed have been, for Jack Durnford was one of the best fellows in the world, and his restoration to health little short of miraculous.

"Gordon," he said to me with a sudden seriousness when tea had ended, and we had placed down our cups. "I want to tell you something—something I've been longing always to tell you, and now I have got down Muriel's consent. I want to tell you about her father and his friends."

"And about Elma, too?" I said in quick eagerness. "Yes, tell me everything."

"No, not everything, for I don't know it myself. But what I know I will explain as briefly as I can, and leave you to form your own conclusions. It is," he went on, "a strange—most amazing story. When I myself became first cognizant of the mystery I was on board the flagship the Renown, under Admiral Sir John Fisher. We were lying in Malta when they arrived the English yacht Iris, owned by Mr. Philip Lettichcourt, and among those on board cruising for pleasure were Mr. Martin Woodroffe, Mr. Hyton Chater, and the owner's wife and daughter Muriel.

"Muriel and I met first at a tennis party, and afterwards frequently at various houses in Malta, for anyone who goes there and entertains is soon entertained in return. A mutual attachment sprang up between Muriel and myself," he said, placing his hand tenderly upon her and smiling, "and we often met in secret and took long walks, until quite suddenly Lettichcourt said that it was necessary to sail for Smyrna to pick up some friends who had been traveling in Palestine. The night they sailed a great consternation was caused on the island by the news that the safe in the admiral superintendent's office had been opened by expert safe-breakers, and certain most important secret documents stolen."

"What?" I asked, much interested.

"Again, two months later, when the villa of the prince of Montevichi, at Palermo, was broken into and the whole of the famous jewels of the princess stolen, it was a very strange fact that the Iris was at the moment in that port. But it was not until the third occasion, when the yacht was at Villefranche, and our acquaintance being at Toulon I got four days' leave to go along the Riviera, that my suspicions were aroused, for at the very hour when I was dining at the London house at Nice with Muriel and a schoolfellow of hers, Elma Heath—who was spending the winter there with a lady who was Baron Oberg's cousin—that a great robbery was committed in one of the big hotels up at Cimiez, the wife of an American millionaire losing jewels valued at thirty thousand pounds. Then the robberies, coincident with the visit of the yacht, aroused my strong suspicion. I remarked the nature of those documents stolen from Malta, and recognized that they could only be of service to a foreign government. Then came the Leghorn incident of which you told me. The yacht's name had been changed to the Lola, and she had been repainted. I made searching inquiry, and found that on the evening she was purposely run aground in order to strike up a friendship at the consulate, a Russian gunboat was lying in the vicinity. The consul's safe was rifled, and the scheme certainly was to transfer anything obtained from it to the Russian gunboat."

"But what was in the safe?" I asked.

"Fortunately nothing. But you see they knew that our squadron was due in Leghorn, and that some extremely important dispatches were on the way to the admiral—secret orders based upon the decision of the British cabinet as to the vexed question of Russian ships passing the Dardanelles—they expected that they would be lodged in the safe until the arrival of the admiral's squadron, and they were, however, bitterly disappointed because the dispatches had not arrived."

"And then?"

"Well, the only Russian who appeared to have any connection with them was Baron Oberg, the governor general of Finland, whose habit it was to spend part of the winter in Leghorn. From Elma Heath's conversation at dinner that evening at Nice I gathered that she and her uncle had been guests on the Iris on several occasions, although I must say that Muriel was extremely reticent regarding all that concerned the yacht."

"Of course," she said quickly. "Now that I have told you the truth, Jack, don't you think it was only natural?"

"Most certainly, dear," he answered still holding her hand. "You're not a secret that you could very well tell to me until you could thoroughly trust me, especially as your father had been implicated in the theft of those documents from Malta. The truth is," he said, turning to me, "Philip Lettichcourt has all along been the cat's paw of Baron Oberg. A few years ago he was a well-known money lender in the city, and in that capacity met the baron, who, being in disgrace, required a loan. He was also in the habit of having certain shady transactions with that during one of the thinnest thieves of whom Dick Archer and Hyton Chater were leaders. For their use, so that they might not only use it for the purpose of storing the stolen goods, but for the purpose of selling from place to place under the guise of wealthy Englishmen traveling for pleasure. Upon that vessel indeed, was stored thousands and thousands of pounds' worth of jewels and objects of value, the proceeds of many great robberies in England, France and Belgium. Sometimes they traveled for the purpose of disposing of the jewels in various inland towns where the gems, having been recut, were not recognized, while at other times, Chater and Archer, assisted by Mackintosh, the captain, and Olintho Santini, the steward, sailed for a port, landed, committed a robbery, and then sailed away again, quite unsuspected, as rich Englishmen."

"And the crew?" I asked, after a pause.

"They were, of course, well paid, and were kept in ignorance of what the supposed owner and his friends did ashore."

"But Oberg's connection with it?" I asked, surprised at those revelations.

"Ah!" exclaimed Muriel. "The ingenuity of that crafty villain is fondled. Before he got into the czar's favor he owed my father a large sum, and then sought how to evade repayment. By means of his spies he discovered the real purpose of the cruises of the Iris—for I was often taken on board with a maid in order to allay any suspicion that might arise if only men were cruising. Then he not only compelled my father to cancel the debt, but he impressed the vessel and those who owned and navigated it into the secret service of Russia. A dozen times did we make attempts to obtain secret papers from Italian, French and English dock yards, but only once in the case of Malta and once at Toulon did we succeed. Ah! Mr. Gregg," she added, "you do not know all the anxiety I suffered, how at every hour we were in danger of betrayal or capture, and of the hundred narrow escapes we have had of customhouse officers rummaging the yacht for contraband. You will no doubt recollect the sensation caused by the theft of the jewels of the Princess Wilhelmine of Schaumbourg-Lippe from the lady's maid in the rapid between Cannes and Len Arcs, the robbery from the Marcelline branch of the Credit Lyonnais, and the great haul of plate from the chateau of Dardou, the Paris millionaire, close to Arcachon."

"Yes," I said, for they were all robberies of which I had read in the newspapers a couple of years before.

"Well," she said, "they were all committed by Archer or Woodroffe and his gang—with accomplices ashore, of course—and never once did it seem that an attempt was made to use. While the police were frantically searching hither and thither, we used to weigh anchor and calmly steam away with our booty on board. We had with us an old Dutch lapidary, and one of the cabins was fitted as a workshop, where he altered the appearance of the stones, and prepared them ready for sale while the gold was melted in a crucible and put ashore to be sent to agents in Hamburg."

"But that night in Leghorn?" I said.

"What happened to poor Elma?"

"I do not know," was Muriel's reply. "We were both on board together, and standing at the crack of the door watched you sitting at dinner that evening. The instant, however, you went ashore, Captain Woodroffe—whom you called Ransby—and Mackintosh, the captain—who, by the way, was an old ticket-of-leave man—went ashore, and, of course, broke into the consulate. Then, as soon as they returned, Elma came to my cabin, spoke me, and said that the baron was taking her and her maid to sea, they were to travel overland back to London. She was ready dressed to go. I kissed her, and promising to meet her soon, we parted. That was the last I saw of her. What happened to her afterwards only she alone can tell us."

"But she is not the baron's niece?" I said.

"No. There is some mystery," declared Muriel. "She holds some secret which he fears she may divulge. But of what nature, I am in ignorance."

"You say that your father has never taken any active part in the robberies? Where is he now?" I asked.

"What! my father? He is dead, my father, as he had already done so many times, but his scheme was frustrated. My father, because of his inhuman treatment of poor Elma, defied him, when it appears that Oberg, who was in Helmsford, telegraphed to the admiral of the Russian fleet in the Baltic. The crew from the Iris were at once landed at Riga, and only Mackintosh and my father put to sea again. Ah! my father was desperate, for he knew the merciless character of that man whose victim he had been for so long. They watched a Russian cruiser bearing down upon them, when, just as it drew near, they got off in a boat and blew up the yacht, which sank in three minutes with its ill-laden wealth on board."

"And your father?"

"She was silent, and I saw tears standing in her eyes."

"There was a tragedy," Jack explained in a low, hoarse voice. "He and the captain did not, unfortunately, get sufficiently far from the yacht when it blew her up, and they went down with her."

"And I looked in allance at Muriel, who stood with her head bent and her white face covered with her hands. Almost at the same moment there was a low tap at the door, and the servant maid announced:

"Mr. Santini, miss."

"Ah!" exclaimed Jack quickly, as Olintho entered the room. "Then you had my note! We have asked you here to reveal to us this dastardly plot which seemed to have been formed against Mr. Gregg and myself. As you know, I've had a narrow escape."

"I know, miss. And the signor commendatore is also threatened."

"By whom?"

"By those who killed my poor wife, and who intended also to silence me," was his answer.

"The same who compelled you to take me to that house where the fatal chair was prepared, eh?"

"It was Archer, who, fearing that you came to London in search of them, devised that devilish contrivance," he said in his broken English. Then, continuing, he went on fiercely: "Now that I have discovered why my poor Armida was killed, I will tell the truth, and not spare them. Since you left Scotland, miss, I have been up in Dumfries, and have discovered several facts which prove that for some reason known only to himself, Lettichcourt, while at Ransby, wrote to me."

"And Armida and myself," he said, "separately."

making an appointment to see us at the same time at that spot on the edge of the wood, as he had some secret commission to entrust to us. The letter addressed to me apparently fell into someone else's hands—probably one of the secret agents of Baron Oberg, who were always watching Lettichcourt's doings, and he, anxious to learn what was intended, made himself up to look like me, and kept the appointment in my place. Armida, to me, went up to Scotland, and was also there at the appointed time. What actually transpired can only be surmised, yet it seems that Lettichcourt was in the habit of going up to that spot and lingering there in the evening in order to meet Chater in secret, as the latter was in hiding in a small hotel in Dumfries. Therefore those who formed the plot must have endeavored to throw suspicion upon Lettichcourt. It is plain, however, as both myself and Armida knew the gang, it was to their interest to get rid of us, because the suspicions of the police had at last become aroused. Poor Armida was therefore deliberately enticed there to her death, while the inquisitive man whom the assassin took to be myself was also struck down."

"By whom?"

"Not by Chater, for he was in London on that night."

"Then by Woodroffe?" Durnford said.

"Without a doubt. It was all most cleverly thought out. It was to his advantage alone to close our lips, because in that same fatal chair in Lambeth old Jacob Moser, the Jew bullion broker of Hatton Garden, met his death—a most diabolical crime, with which none of his friends were associated, and of which we alone held knowledge. He therefore wrote to us as though from Lettichcourt, calling us up to Ransby, in order to strike the blows in the darkness," he added in his peculiar Italian manner. "Besides, he feared we would tell the signor the truth."

"You have not told the police?"

"I dare not, miss. Surely the less the police know about this matter the better, otherwise the Signorina Lettichcourt must suffer for her father's iniquity and evil-doing."

"Yes," cried Jack anxiously. "That's right, Olintho. The police must know nothing. The Signorina must make amends for her father's crime by keeping her silence. But who was it who shot me in Suffolk street?"

"The same man, Martin Woodroffe."

"Then the assassin is back from Russia?"

"He followed closely behind the Signor Commendatore. Markoff, a clever secret agent of Baron Oberg's, came with him."

"And Threw Open the Folding Door Which Separated Me From My Silent Love."

Then for the first time I recollected that the man I had recognized in the Strand was a fellow I had seen lounging in the anteroom of the palace of the governor-general of Finland. The pair, fearing that I should reveal what I knew, were undoubtedly in London to take my life in secret. Now that Lettichcourt was dead, Woodroffe had united forces with Oberg, and intended to silence me because they feared that Elma, besides exposing them, had also revealed her secret."

"I trust that the Signorina Lettichcourt has explained the story of the yacht and its crew," Olintho remarked. "And has also shown you how I was implicated. You will therefore discern the reason why I have hitherto feared to give you any explanation."

"Yes," I said, "Miss Lettichcourt has told me a great deal, but not everything. I cannot yet gather for what reason she and her father fled from Ransby."

HISTORIC FLAG INCIDENTS

The Spirit of '76

THIS picture is more than an incident, it is an Inspiration. It depicts the spirit which, in the trying days of our young Republic, moved men, for sheer love of Liberty and love of Country, to march unflinchingly and carry the Flag of Freedom in the face of almost certain death. Liberty was the slogan of these men—Liberty, with Death as the only alternative.

THIS is Patriotism, and Patriotism of this sort isn't dead. It but requires an OCCASION when it will be found that the American spirit—the Spirit of '76—will blossom forth as strong and virile as ever it did in the darkest days of the Revolution.

There are many occasions upon which you can show YOUR Patriotism. Not, perhaps, by deeds of blood and glory, but you can, by a simpler and yet effective way, show that the spirit of '76 is alive in YOU.

On every National, State or Civic Holiday you can

CLERKS DEFEATED.

South Connelville Takes Master Mechanics Into Camp.

The Baltimore & Ohio Master Mechanics' office were defeated by South Connelville last evening by the score of 9 to 4. Three serious outfield errors with men on bases cost the clerks a number of runs.

This was the first game played by the office boys this season and the rough edges were not quite worn off, but the boys are all confident of making a better showing in their next game. H. C. Fisher led at batting with a home run and a two-base hit. Batteries were House and Bloom for South Connelville, and Younk and King for the Clerks.

WHEELER WINS.

Defeated Lutherans on West Side Grounds, 11 to 3.

The Wheeler baseball nine defeated the Lutheran team last evening on the West Side grounds, 11 to 3. The game belonged to Wheeler all the way through, the Lutherans not getting a score until the seventh inning. Skops pitched for Wheeler and the Lutherans were helpless.

The game was not to have been played between the two teams, each having another nine scheduled to appear, but as the opponents for both failed to show up, the two nines that were there played.

Wheeler will probably play Davidson and will take on any first class nine.

GRUB BEATS WENZEL.

Has Easy Time With North Side Boy at Pittsburgh.

Harry Grub, the Garfield batter, who fights Ray Kaiser at the West Side basketball hall on the night of Memorial Day, Monday, May 31, had everything his own way in Pittsburgh Monday night when he met his North Side rival, Whitney Wenzel.

Grub fought hard throughout the bout, but at that was not forced to go his fastest to score a decisive victory over Wenzel.
